“He is highly analytical and gives a clear steer”

Chambers & Partners 2016

Practice Overview

Michael's practice has three main strands:

- Contentious trust litigation
- Advice and litigation concerning occupational pension schemes
- Tax litigation

He also undertakes professional liability litigation in areas related to the three main areas of his practice.

Michael has wide litigation experience, at all levels and in a variety of jurisdictions.

In this jurisdiction he has appeared several times in the House of Lords and in the Supreme Court (in the revenue case of DCC Ltd v HMRC). His appearances in the House of Lords include the leading tax cases of Ingram, McNiven v Westmoreland Investments and Arctic Systems, and the important pensions case of National Grid v Mayes.

Overseas, he has a substantial contentious and non-contentious trust practice mainly in Bermuda, and involving large family trusts. He also appears regularly in the courts of Hong Kong, including three appearances in the Court of Final Appeal.

The recent 2016 edition of Chambers & Partners describes him as "an extremely good performer on all levels". Handles occupational pensions work and trusts and tax litigation to a very high standard. He regularly appears in offshore jurisdictions. "He is a good choice for highly technical matters, particularly those involving pensions tax." "He is highly analytical, he gives a clear steer and he gets stuck in."

He is an experienced litigator, who has a strong focus on work relating to both onshore and offshore trusts and is well equipped to deal with matters concerning clients from overseas. "He is extremely good. He is a core chancery practitioner who has very great knowledge of private client and inheritance tax law." Chambers & Partners, 2016

Trusts, Tax, Probate and Estates

Michael began his career at the bar as a private client trust lawyer, and this work still forms an important part of his practice.

Recent UK cases include:

- Scullion v Cooper [2018] obtaining court approval for a compromise under which a trade union strike fund was dedicated to charity.
- Labrousche v Frey, [2016] a long running piece of trust litigation, which culminated in a 7 week trial. Judgment was handed down in February 2016, and Michael's client was acquitted of all the breaches of trust alleged against her. The case raised issues about trustee accounting, the meaning of wilful default, and tracing, as well as issues regarding the succession to founder's rights in a Liechtenstein Anstalt.
- Rawstron v Freud [2014] represented the executors of Lucian Freud in a dispute about a secret trust created by his will.
- Day v RCM [2013], appearing in the Court of Appeal in linked appeals concerning an enduring power of attorney, inter vivos gifts of chattels and the rule in Strong v Bird.

He advises on and conducts international succession and trust disputes, and has appeared in five major pieces of litigation in Bermuda in recent years. He also conducts and advises on litigation in the Cayman Islands and the Bahamas. He is currently acting for members of a prominent Hong Kong family in relation to a high value dispute over a family trust, and for a US/UK family in relation to the distribution of a high value trust fund in Bermuda.

He has appeared in overseas courts as an expert witness on English trust law issues, in the Netherlands and Canada.

Michael also undertakes tax litigation on behalf of both HMRC and taxpayers.

Recent tax cases include:

- Scott v HMRC [2018]. Representing the taxpayer in a dispute over the interaction of corresponding deficiency relief with the rate of CGT.
- Proteus and Samarkand v HMRC [2017]. Representing the taxpayers in the Court of Appeal in a tax appeal to, combined with judicial review of HMRC practice concerning partnerships investing in films.
- Morgan Lloyd v HMRC [2016] challenging the convention compatibility of the regime for taxing the acquisition of interests in taxable property by registered pension schemes
- Hargreaves v HMRC [2015]. Appearing in the Court of Appeal (alongside David Goldberg QC and Claire Montgomery QC) on an appeal which raises the issue of the right of a taxpayer to require HMRC to justify making an out of time assessment before the taxpayer is required to make his defence on the merits.
- Re Travers [2013]. Representing the estate of P L Travers in a successful challenge to HMRC's attempt to impose the special rate of income tax for trusts on royalties from the Mary Poppins stage musical.
- Mayes v HMRC [2011] Successfully defending a tax avoidance scheme in the Court of Appeal.
- DCC Ltd v HMRC [2010] Successfully representing HMRC in the Supreme Court in an appeal on the taxation of gilt repos.

He also advises, and appears for the Hong Kong Commissioner of Inland Revenue. He has appeared in the Court of Final Appeal in Shui On Credit Co Ltd v CIR [2010] and Nice Cheer Investments [2012] and has made several appearances at first instance and in the Court of Appeal.

He undertakes contested probate litigation (see Carapeto v Good [2002] and Re Fitzgerald [2014])

Before taking silk Michael appeared regularly for the Attorney-General in charity matters, and since then he has continued to advise charities on trusts and tax issues, and to undertake charity litigation (in the HSBC case referred to above he appeared for the
